GUEST COMMENTARY:

Coyotes: keeping them wild

COYOTE PUP
(courtesy Roger Jones, Tuleyome Association)

By Mary K. Hanson
Tuleyome Association

You hear their yip-yip-yowling in the early evening and you know immediately what they are: Western Coyotes, a native of California who makes up one of the three types of wild candids found in North America. Their name comes from the Aztec word coyotl, and their yodeling howls can travel up to three miles.

Larger than foxes but smaller than wolves, coyotes have carved out a niche for themselves in the ecosystem. Weighing in at anywhere from 20 to 50 pounds, these smart and highly adaptive predators have keen senses of smell and vision, and can run at bursts up to 40 miles per hour. These attributes suit them well when they're on the hunt for rabbits and rodents (which comprise 80% of their diet) as well as frogs, young deer, and even fish. In fact, coyotes are very good swimmers. Coyotes will also eat fruit, insects, snakes and carrion.

In our region, the coyotes generally mate in February. By April or May, the pups arrive (in litters anywhere from 3 to 12) and the mating pair forms a solid family group, feeding and protecting their pups. Coyotes always set up a "den" site in which to birth and rear their pups, and these dens can be anything from a small cave or rock outcropping, to a hollowed out tree, dense bush, a burrow in the ground... or an abandoned outbuilding. Pups can start hunting with their parents when they're about 10 weeks old and remain with them for about 8 months... Although the pups are darling, they're not play things... and their parents will be fiercely protective of them, so if you come across one, do not approach it. Photograph it from a distance.

Coyotes mate for life, and live in a social pack structure similar to wolves. There is typically a mated "alpha" pair (the top dogs) at the head of the pack, and then various generations of offspring and extended family members below

Food plant expands its footprint

Same week as Japanese rice bun plant breaks ground in Southport

Two days after city officials helped break ground for the 28,000 Shinmei U.S.A. rice bun plant in the Southport Business Park, they helped celebrate a new plant for TOMRA Sorting on Wednesday in northern West Sacramento.

The new 60,000-square foot TOMRA Sorting plant at 875 Embarcadero Drive (near Reed Avenue) replaces the company's former 42,000-square foot building on Seaport Boulevard. The plant includes the "latest technology for sorting nuts, such as almonds, walnuts and pistachios," reports a spokesperson.

The facility handles fresh and processed foods, and a laboratory to test for aflatoxins.

West Sacramento officials are pursuing a future as a food industry hub; Mayor Christopher Cabaldon has called for the city to become the "Silicon Valley of food."

Over 50 people work at the West Sacramento plant, the international company reports.

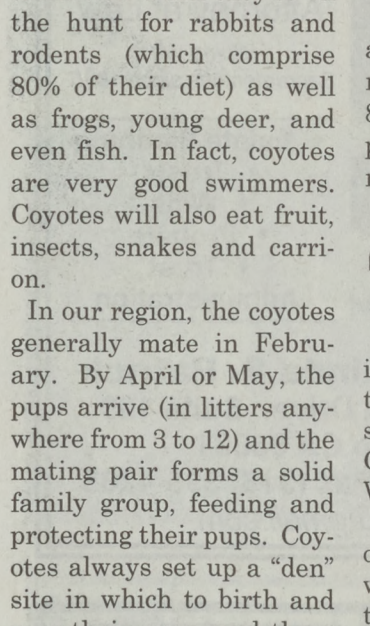
'Fix 50' ends; freeway back to normal

The Fix50 freeway rehabilitation project in Sacramento finished six days ahead of schedule, reports Caltrans. Closed lanes reopened last Wednesday tonight.

"After almost two months of major-traffic interfering work, motorists will be able to enjoy the open highway and newly repaved deck, which can now serve us for many years to come" said Caltrans District 3 Director, Jody Jones, in a press statement. "We are grateful for the support and cooperation by our community partners and the public for their help to reduce traffic congestion and make this Fix50 project such a big success."

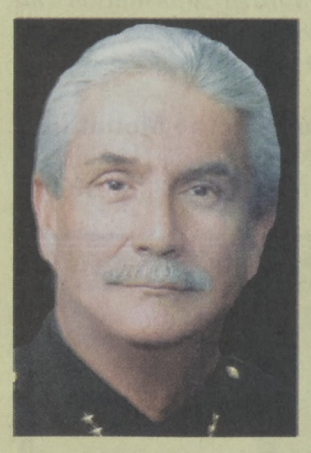
Non-traffic interfering night and weekend work will continue throughout the year. This work includes occasional lane closures for permanent striping, continued seismic retrofitting of the columns underneath the viaduct, and lighting and fencing installation in the parking lots beneath the project area. The entire project is expected to be finished in December.

The first phase of the project, which closed some eastbound lanes of U.S. 50, caused heavy impacts to freeway traffic in West Saramento.



Sheriff's office studied

Yolo County's elected leaders concerned



Sheriff Ed Prieto (above) ran unopposed in his bid for reelection this month, but Board of Supervisors has concerns about his personnel management
(courtesy of Yolo County, 2008)

The Yolo County Board of Supervisors and Yolo County Sheriff Ed Prieto have agreed to form an "independent working group" to address internal issues in the sheriff's office.

The board of supervisors referred concerns about nepotism and other allegedly inappropriate personnel practices to the county grand jury.

The resulting grand jury report this year was entitled: "Yolo County Sheriff: Leadership Practices from the Wild, Wild West."

The new working group is charged with "completing an evaluation of the issues identified in the grand jury report, and to make recommendations where appropriate to improve the operational environment within the Sheriff's department," said a statement from the county.

Prieto is quoted as responding:

"It is important to me not only that the issues raised by the grand jury be fully analyzed, but also that all of the Sheriff's department be provided an opportunity to be heard. I fully support this effort and believe it will enhance my personal commitment and the department's commitment to excellence and the performance of our duties with increased professionalism and integrity."

The working group will be chaired by Skip Davies, the mayor of Woodland whose term ends July 2.

In Yolo County, the office of sheriff is an elected one. Sheriffs are not hired and fired by the board of supervisors.

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

The other day I had nothing better to do than play around for a few hours on the Internet and I accidentally stumbled across something called Gum Tree, which is apparently the Australian version of Craigslist, and on it someone had placed a very funny advertisement that had quickly gone viral. It was an ad (with photo) for a very pretty used ivory-colored wedding dress placed by a man whose ex-wife had ran off with his best friend. The caption read, "Wedding Dress for Bride Seeking Eventual Infidelity", and it went something like this:

"Due to be married soon? Not planning on staying faithful? Want to sleep with one of your husband's closet friends? Then this is the wedding dress for you! It's a one-of-a-kind garment designed by Benedict Arnold and believed to be derived from the very cloth that Judas wore while betraying the only son of God. It is guaranteed for approximately two years of reasonable marriage-mediocracy before the complete and utter disintegration of your relationship due to extramarital promiscuity. This harlot-sized garment will make you the envy of your trampish posse on your fraudulent wedding day. Not looking for much. Make an offer."

When I had stopped laughing, I forwarded it to a friend of mine and he quickly wrote back that he loved it, too, and that it was the kind of humor he would expect out of an Australian guy. So, later that evening, I found myself wondering about why it is that people living in different parts of the world often have very different senses of humor. I even recalled a column I had written many years ago about how a scientific study had somehow discerned that men and women also find different things to be funny because they have different brain chemistry, with women preferring more cerebral humor with long narratives, while guys are perfectly happy with the Three Stooges doing their thing.

Anyway, while trying to make some sense of all this, back to the Internet I went, and sure enough, there was all kinds of information about how people living in different parts of the world have very unique senses of humor. For instance, although there are of course many exceptions to every rule, it would seem that the consensus was that the British are into witty and ironic humor, the Irish like to tell long funny stories, the Germans like their humor dry, the Japanese goofy or dark, the Russians self-denigrating, the Australians raunchy and crude, and Americans like to laugh at life. I even ran across a few jokes that tried to make the case for some of the above generalities that I just have to pass along:

■ An English woman is distraught because she fears her husband is having an affair, so she goes out and buys a gun. The next day, she sneaks away from work and just as she suspected, she finds her husband at home and in their bed with another woman. When she places the gun next to her head, her husband jumps out of bed and pleads with her not to shoot.

"Shut up!" she screams at him. "And you're going to be next!"

■ A young Frenchman was saying his prayers as his father passed by the bedroom door and heard his son say, "God bless Mummy, and Daddy, and please make Rennes the capital of France."

"Claude," asked his father, "why do you want Rennes to be the capital of France?"

"Because that is what I wrote down in my geography exam."

■ An Australian man is walking down a street with a case of beer under his arm. His friend, Arnie, stops him and asks, "Say, Bloke, whatcha got that case of beer for?"

"Well, I got if for my wife, you see."

"Wow!" exclaimed Arnie. "Great trade!"

■ An American woman's husband has been going in and out of a coma for many months and she has stayed by his bedside the whole time. When he finally comes to his senses, he motions for her to come closer to him.

"You know," he whispers to her, "you have been with me through all the bad times. When I got fired from my job, when my business failed, when we lost the house, when I got shot by that irate husband, and even now, when my health has started to go south. You know what?"

"No, dear, what?"

"I think you bring me really bad luck."

The older I have gotten, the more I have realized that the one thing that makes life's many ups and downs bearable is a good sense of humor. In fact, it is usually humor that keeps us from making all the unimportant things important, which of course is the key to keeping one's sanity. And when it comes to the people I want to have in my life, I always try to remember something W.H. Auden once wrote:

"Among those whom I like, I can find no common denominator, but among those whom I love, I can; all of them make me laugh."

Apparently, the British are into witty and ironic humor, the Irish like to tell long funny stories, the Germans like their humor dry, the Japanese goofy or dark, the Russians self-denigrating, the Australians raunchy and crude, and Americans like to laugh at life.

City fireworks season starts Saturday for 4th of July holiday

Love it or hate it, the fireworks season in West Sacramento begins this weekend, surrounding the 4th of July holiday.

Fireworks judged "safe and sane" can be sold and used legally in the City of West Sacramento from noon on Saturday, July 28, to noon on Friday, July 6.

City officials allow fireworks to be sold by nonprofit and religious groups at a limited number of booths in the city, mostly in shopping centers. Booth permits are awarded by a lottery after each group submits an application. Sales hours at each individual booth may vary.

This year's fireworks booth vendors:

- Boosters for International Gymnastics
- Lighthouse Christian Ministries
- Our Lady of Grace School
- River City Christian Academy
- Sikh Temple Sacramento
- West Sacramento Education Foundation
- West Sacramento Little League
- Youth for Christ Ministries

The News-Ledger expects to update this article with the location of each booth in next week's paper and sooner at WestSac.com.

Public fireworks displays require a permit.

Raley Field will include a fireworks show the night of July 4 as part of "Fourth on the Field," with local food trucks lined up on the baseball field's warning track, live music from Nunchuck Taylor, interactive games, a children's area and then a fireworks show. $5 for kids under 12, $10 for those 12 and up, and $15 for "Solon Club" tickets for those 21 and up. Visit the box office or Ticketmaster.

them. Their territories are vaguely circular in shape and usually revolve around wherever their central den is. Coyotes can be aggressively territorial, especially in the late spring and early summer – which we're in right now -- when their pups are born, and will protect their dens, packs and hunting grounds from trespassers when they have to. This natural territorial behavior can become something of a problem when humans deliberately (or inadvertently) invite the coyotes into residential areas.

Normally, coyotes are instinctively wary of humans and will avoid contact with them, but when you supply the coyotes with food and shelter these incredibly adaptable animals will quickly lose their fear of you and commandeer your neighborhood for themselves and their offspring. And you may be feeding the coyotes without even realizing it. Whenever you leave food outside for your pets or leave bags of garbage in your yard, you are supplying the coyotes (and other animals like opossums, rats and raccoons) with a sure and steady food source. This can cause a cascade of unwanted issues. The coyotes may come to view your pets as "interlopers" in their territory and attack them, or view your un-spayed or un-neutered dogs as potential mates. (Yes, coyotes can mate with domesticated dogs.) They may also hijack your garbage cans as their personal buffets, and your outbuildings as their dens.

In less populated areas where there is more livestock, coyotes can also be an issue. Since leg traps, poisons and other older methods of eradication are now illegal throughout most of California, when coyotes cause problems for farmers and ranchers, they call in professional wildlife damage management specialists who are employed by federal, state, or county agencies to assist them in developing appropriate management strategies for specific situations. Never try to trap, relocate or kill a coyote by yourself. Let the professional handle things.

Remember that coyotes are wild animals, not potential pets for you to try to "befriend" or "tame". They are handsome, adaptable, intelligent creatures with a lot of fascinating habits... but the best way to view them is from afar.

Mayor's group gives West Sac a prize for 'liveability'

Effort to offer 'universal preschool' draws the honor

West Sacramento shared first place honors in the "2014 City Liveability Awards" program from the U.S. Conference of Mayors over the weekend in Dallas.

New Orleans won its award for the program "NOLA FOR LIFE," a campaign to mobilize government and community partners to fight the city's "culture of violence," reported a spokeswoman for the mayor's conference. The program is credited with helping to bring the city's murder rate down to what, in the first quarter of 2014, was its lowest rate since 1970.

West Sacramento received its honor for a local partnership called "Universal Preschool for West Sacramento" (UP4WS), which strives "to provide high-quality preschool and child care for all children ages 0-5 in the City of West Sacramento at little cost to residents, through significant subsidies." Partners include the City, the Washington Unified School District, Yolo County Office of Education, and the First 5 organization.

Proponents believe early childhood education shows learning advantages and lifelong benefits.

"West Sacramento has rapidly transformed from a neglected industrial town to a thriving, livable city, and Universal Preschool for West Sacramento (UP4WS) gives our youngest residents and their parents to create a future full of educational success and economic prosperity," said Mayor Cabaldon in a press statement. "I'm honored to accept this award on behalf of UP4WS and all of our partners who put kids first and turf aside to achieve the impossible."

$75,000 in restitution for housing seized fighting roosters

Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig announced that on June 13, Yolo County Superior Court Judge Daniel Maguire awarded $75,135 to the County in restitution following convictions of an illegal cockfighting operation.

In January, a Yolo County Jury convicted Lorenzo Ponce of Dunnigan on all charges arising out of an "underground" cockfighting ring operated at his home. Judge Maguire sentenced 63-year-old Lorenzo Pena Ponce to 20 days county jail and three years summary probation for these crimes.

The District Attorney's Office asked for $106,235.00 from Ponce for the costs of impoundment, care, and euthanasia of the birds taken from Ponce's property. Ponce contested the amount at sentencing, and a restitution hearing was scheduled.

In that hearing, a representative from the Sheriff's Animal Control division testified the County incurred the loss as a result of housing and taking care of the birds for 60 days before the birds lawfully euthanized. Judge Maguire awarded the county $75,135.00 compensating for forty of the sixty days. Deputy District Attorney Barry Shapiro, who prosecuted the case, requested that Judge Maguire advise Ponce that he may not own or care for an animal for five years following his conviction.

The restitution will reimburse Sheriff Ed Prieto's Animal Control Services division.

"Cockfighting is inhumane and cruel to the roosters and is also a costly nuisance to any county," said Prieto. "In addition to the time it takes to arrest, book and investigate the offenders, counties must impound and care for the birds until certain timelines are met and the birds are ultimately euthanized."

The D.A.'s office has reported that officers interrupting the cockfighting event found about 90 birds being raised on Ponce's property, and had to euthanize some of the injured birds at the scene.

June 22, 4 p.m.

A citizen saw a thief break out a window of an apartment on the 2400-block of apartment, and called police. A man flagged down a responding officer, saying his apartment had just been burglarized and the suspect was in a nearby apartment unit. The officer contacted a 30-year old man in that unit. He denied any involvement in the theft.

A woman leaving that unit carrying a baby told an officer that she had seen this suspect concealing some items in an attic, and added that a stolen TV was in his bedroom.

The man gave officers permission to search. They found a backpack with the suspect's ID, the victim's DVD player, jewelry, lottery ticket, game system and flashlight. A TV was found on the balcony behind an air conditioner, and it was identified by the burglary victim as his own.

The victim said that the suspect had lived with him for one or two weeks, and was kicked out this morning. He placed the suspect under citizen's arrest for police to take.

June 23, 12:39 p.m.

A break-in was discovered on Pierce Street.

D.C., and at numerous libraries and archives throughout the West. The result is a new biography that is as close to the truth as we're likely to get.

While still in his 20s, Horn fought in the last major battle with the Apaches on U.S. soil and chased the Indians into Mexico with Gen. George Crook. He had a brief and controversial career as a Pinkerton detective, was a hired gun and often bragged about the murders he had committed.

While working in Iron Mountain, Wyoming, Horn was charged with the murder of a 14-year-old sheepherding rancher. Horn confessed to the crime, but later claimed he did so while intoxicated. A Wyoming jury found him guilty, and in 1903 he was hanged on the day before his 43rd birthday. His guilt is still debated today, more than a century later.

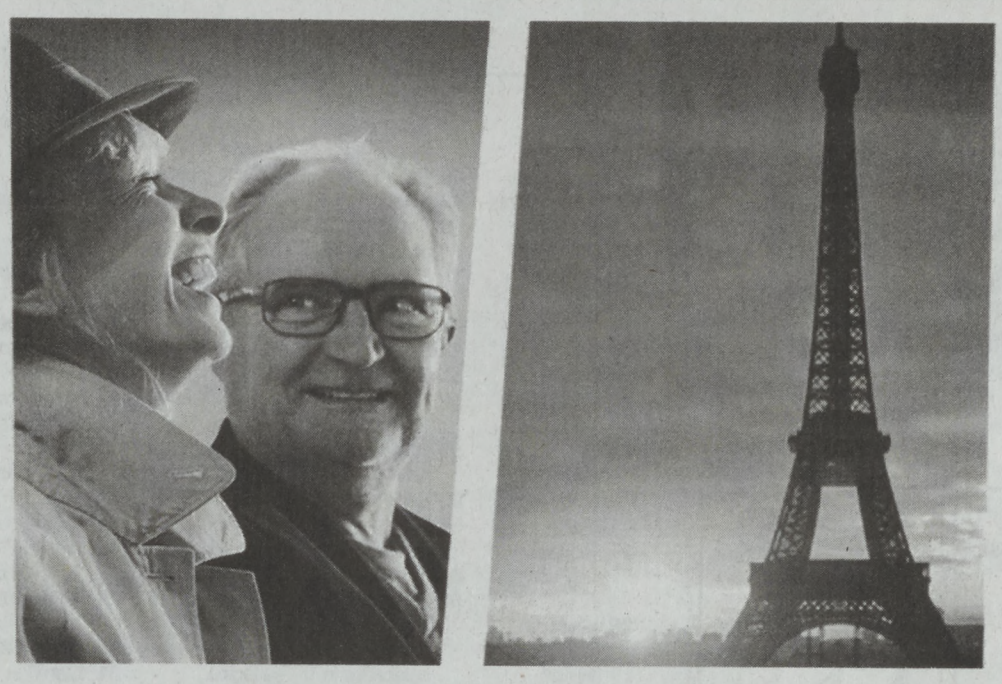
COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS
BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Le Week-End" (R) -- Is there anything a jaunt to Paris can't fix? How about the mold on a resentful marriage that's been growing for almost 30 years? Nick (Jim Broadbent) and Meg (Lindsay Duncan) are a sweet older English couple revisiting Paris, the site of their honeymoon years ago. They have quiet moments, tender moments, and a lot of bickering in some very nice restaurants.



Jim Broadbent & Lindsay Duncan in 'Le Week-End'

The film is not the cutest or most lighthearted look at long-term marriage, but you end up connecting to the folks on screen. Broadbent and Duncan have the chemistry that makes you believe there really is 30 years of emotional clutter between them. Jeff Goldblum steals the show as the comic relief with multiple dimensions.

"Bad Words" (R) -- An unrelenting jerk forces his way into a spelling bee circuit, inflicting his crudeness on innocent children and their families. Guy Trillby (Jason Bateman -- also the director) is unabashedly profane, sexist, racist, mean and also kind of funny. Thanks to a loophole, he's entered in a spelling bee where he competes grade-school children while an oddball journalist (Katherine Hahn) looks on in wonder. A boy becomes fascinated by the miscreant, whose barbarism doesn't bother him.

This is Jason Bateman's first time directing, and he's given himself quite a role. Bateman has the whole nice-guy charm about him, but here he really embraces the Inner Jackass. If you can't handle a character whose primary behavior is cursing in front of children, then you can skip this one.

"Maidentrip" (NR) -- At age 14, Laura Dekker set out to be the youngest person to sail around the world alone. She documented the trip with a handheld camera, which supplies much of the footage for this feature-length documentary about her trip and growing up at sea. The film largely focuses on the trip itself, the growth that Laura went through, and the independence and introspection that it built. The documentary also spends some time with the struggles that started before she even shoved off -- the family issues that led her to take on such a trip, and how Dutch authorities were not keen to let a teenager go into the open ocean alone.

"The Raid 2" (R) -- In 2012, "The Raid: Redemption" delivered a flying elbow smash to the martial-arts genre. A Jakarta cop took on a high-rise building full of vicious goons in an all-out brawl for survival. This sequel follows our same hero (Iko Uwais, Indonesia's rising star of beat'em ups) as he goes undercover with a brutal crime ring. The movie has more plot points than its predecessor, but doesn't cut back on the expertly executed violence.

Tom Horn in Life and Legend"
by Larry D. Ball
(University of Oklahoma Press, $29.95)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Tom Horn was born in rural Missouri in 1860, but it was in the American Southwest where he made his mark. Leaving home when he was 16, he worked as a lawman, soldier, hired gunman, detective, outlaw and assassin.

Documenting this complex man's life has been difficult for historians, since so much misinformation appears in public records, including Horn's autobiography, published in 1904. Although extremely popular, "Life of Tom Horn, Government Scout and Interpreter" is factually unreliable and triggered much of the legend surrounding him.

Larry D. Ball first became aware of Horn and the controversial nature of his colorful life as a young boy reading books and magazines about the Wild West. Later, while doing research about U.S. marshals and county sheriffs in the Arizona and New Mexico territories, he uncovered new source materials that revealed additional facts about Horn's life. The problem Ball faced was separating fact from fiction.

The former history professor spent several years meticulously researching Horn at the National Archives in Washington,

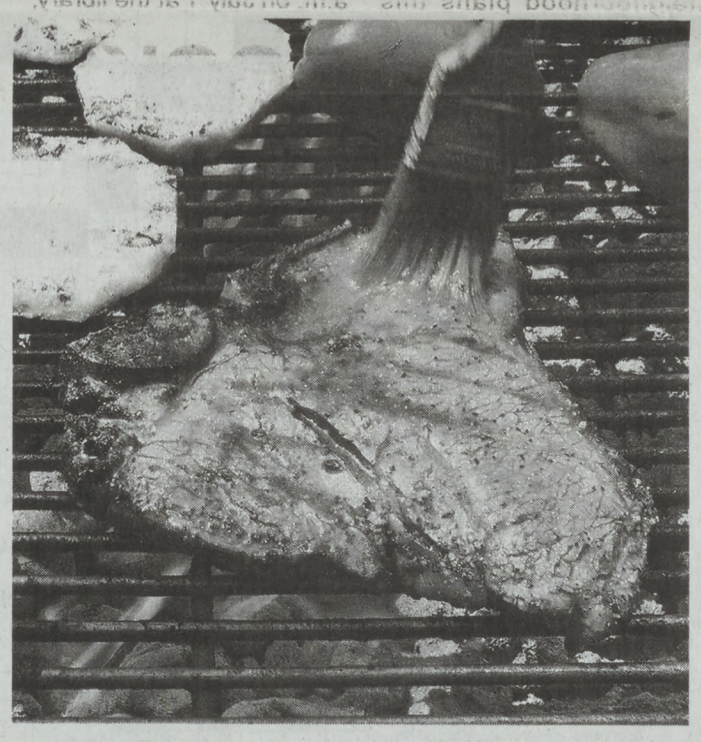
The Kitchen Diva
BY Angela Shelf Medearis

The Beef Master

I was watching a morning news show and saw a fascinating interview with Baseball Hall of Fame pitcher and cattle rancher Nolan Ryan about his new cookbook, "The Nolan Ryan Beef and Barbecue Cookbook: Recipes From a Texas Kitchen." Footage of Ryan with his family on one of his cattle ranches provided a different perspective of a man that many people know only from his legendary baseball career. To develop the cookbook, Ryan and his team worked with Cristobal Vazquez -- executive chef at Rangers Ballpark in Arlington, Texas, and Nolan's personal chef -- to produce a practical and inspiring recipe collection that will allow you to prepare delicious beef.

One of my favorite recipes in Ryan's cookbook is the Easy T-Bone with Soy and Pineapple Marinade. It's the perfect recipe for a holiday celebration or a casual family dinner.



EASY T-BONE WITH SOY AND PINEAPPLE MARINADE

This recipe for marinated and grilled T-Bone steaks was a winner with my family! It showcased the full flavors and tenderness of Ryan's beef perfectly!

2/3 cup olive oil
1/3 cup red wine vinegar
1/4 cup pineapple juice
1/4 cup soy sauce
8 T-bone steaks, 1-inch thick
1 teaspoon kosher salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

1. In a large glass baking dish, combine olive oil, vinegar, pineapple juice, and soy sauce. Set aside 1/4 cup of the marinade in a small bowl to use for basting.

2. Add the steaks to the dish and turn to coat well. Set aside at room temperature for 30 minutes.

3. Preheat grill to medium and lightly oil grill grates. Drain steaks and discard marinade. Season steaks with salt and pepper, and place on the grill. Cook steaks (in batches, if necessary) for 6-8 minutes per side for medium, basting with reserved marinade and turning steaks with tongs several times. Use tongs rather than a fork to juices sealed in.

4. Remove steaks from grill. Let rest for 5-10 minutes. (During grilling, juices are forced to center of the steak, so if you dig in right away, the juices will puddle on your plate. Resting gives the juices a chance to re-distribute through the meat for a juicier steak.)

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF PAMELA STACEY FONG
CASE NUMBER PB14-95

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of PAMELA STACEY FONG aka PAM FONG:

A Petition for Probate has been filed by David W. Rice in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

The Petition for Probate requests that David W. Rice be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: July 16, 2014, at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. Two, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 725 Court St., Woodland CA 95695.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (800) 280-2832 or visit this Internet Web site www.auction.com, using the file number assigned to this case 14-1514-11. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.
